

BREAKING DOWN THE RELATIONSHIP WALL

THE DOUBLE-SIDED WALL IS TAKEN DOWN ONE BRICK AT A TIME

- Step One: Identify the individual bricks the offender has placed on their side of the wall. Remove them by forgiving each offense. (Forgiveness List)
- Step Two: Identify the individual bricks you have placed on your side of the wall. Confess each offense to God. (Confession List)
- Step Three: Seek forgiveness from the other person for the individual bricks you have placed on your side of the wall. (Reconciliation List)

*When you have sought forgiveness from the offender, you have done your part.
 When the offender responds with forgiveness, reconciliation takes place.
 The relationship may be restored over time through the rebuilding of trust.*

Original concept by Carl Moellering, Moellering Culture Development